

COMBE GROVE'S

TOP 5 BOOKS OF THE MONTH

NATURE EDITION

THE WILD SILENCE RAYNOR WINN

Waterstones Book of the Month and Costa Award short-listed, The Salt Path's follow up, The Wild Silence is a must read. Brilliantly written by Raynor Winn, raw emotion shreds through the pages of the book as she gives her account of hope, despair, and humans incredible connection to nature. Following on from The Salt Path, it is hard to know what might come next for Raynor and her husband, Moth, but a brand new windswept adventure awaits.

THE LOST SPELLS ROBERT MACFARLANE, JACKIE MORRIS

A timeless book to be admired, read aloud and cherished by everyone. The Lost Spells is a collaboration of colour, inventive rhymes, and is an astonishing marriage between words and illustrations. This pocket-sized book can be loved anywhere and everywhere. Each "spell" focuses on a different species of animal, plant or tree that we share our lives and landscapes with. From otter to oak, jay to jackdaw, grey seal to silver birch every poem is captivating.

THE GARDEN JUNGLE DAVE GOULSON

SUNDAY TIMES BESTSELLER

'Exquisite...should be read by every gardener in the country' Observer

The Garden Jungle is a book all about gardening to save the planet. It is a book that captures the seriousness of environmental issues that are inadvertently done from gardeners, whilst showing us how we can live alongside the beautiful species that grace our lives.

THE WILD REMEDY EMMA MITCHELL

THE SUNDAY TIMES BESTSELLER

Emma Mitchell's richly illustrated chronological diary, takes us through the year in a personal, emotive account of depression and how nature is the wild remedy Emma seeks. The specific reference to being outdoors is a heartfelt helping hand to everyone who is in need of an escape, especially during lock down.

DIARY OF A YOUNG NATURALIST DARA MCANULTY

Winner of the 2020 Wainwright Prize, Diary of a Young Naturalist chronicles the turning of Dara McAnulty's world through the course of the seasons. Dara was diagnosed with Asperger's/autism aged five and this is his written teenage perspective of living life with the diagnosis.

